

BIRDS AND BIRDS FOR THE MOOSE MULLIGAN

Gunners Go Out and Get Adequate Supply for Big Feed

When the Loyal Order of Moose, Phoenix lodge, decided upon a mulligan, to be held next Wednesday night, two Moose Gun clubs immediately bobbed up from nowhere in particular, with E. J. Ulman and Jack McMorris, respectively, at their heads as captains. These clubs went out yesterday, at least a portion of them did, and just about the time the big display of lightning and threats of rain began last evening, they began straggling in.

Nobody counted the birds. They were too tired. They had tubs and tubs of them. They had enough to furnish a mulligan for all the Moose in Arizona, let alone the Moose in Phoenix, and that's going some. But the mulligan of next Wednesday isn't for Moose alone. Every Moose in Phoenix is not only commanded to be present, but is expected to bring a friend and a lady or a lady and a friend, either or both. There's going to be a grand, good time for all. Lots to eat, plenty of entertaining talent, the Columbia promising to send its artists over, and many other things too numerous to mention. No more this time. The Moose Mulligan is to be the greatest ever.

Even Cobblestone Won't Jar Baby In a Sidway Carriage

The Sidway Long-Leaf Suspension spring makes the Sidway the only bumpless, jarless, joggleless baby carriage made. As baby grows this suspension spring can be regulated in its tension, to correspond with the baby's weight.

WILL LOOK INTO CONDITIONS

Committee from Board of Trade to Investigate Condition of Laborers and Families Who Made Demonstration on Wednesday

In accordance with the suggestion of Governor Hunt, a committee from the unemployed Mexicans met yesterday with the committee appointed by President A. L. Moore of the Board of Trade, and discussed the situation that is confronting the hundreds of families of that race in Phoenix by reason of the operation of the public works employment act, and the sections of the city charter providing that only citizens or those who have declared their intention to become such may be employed on public works.

The question was gone into more thoroughly than with the governor on the evening previous, and the outcome of the conference, after more than an hour's discussion was a committee composed of A. L. Moore, J. L. Gust, and W. M. Fickas, will make an investigation of the situation immediately and report findings and recommendations. Lyndon Cassidy presided over the gathering, which was attended by Governor Hunt and Dr. Vizcarra, the Mexican consul.

The city commission meets this evening and it is quite likely that some of the members of the committee will appear before the investigation in the course of the investigation they are conducting. Following the sessions at the Board of Trade, Julio Mancillas, who acted as spokesman at the meeting again harangued his followers in the city hall plaza.

PRESIDENT IS STRIVING

eral arbitration was asserted to rest on alleged refusal by the roads to govern themselves by the recommendations of the board. They were recommendations and not court mandates, the men declared, and the roads either disregarded them or placed their own interpretations on them in such a manner as to nullify them. The managers' committee challenged Stone and Carter to name an instance in which such a thing had been done. When conferences between Stone and Carter and the managers apparently had come to the point of a strike the managers were urgent that the federal board of mediation and conciliation should be appealed to. The men's committee suddenly acceded to this, stating that it would have a bad appearance if they refused and asking only that the sessions begin immediately.

Accordingly, William L. Chambers, chairman of the federal mediation board, Assistant Commissioner G. W. W. Harger and Federal Judge Martin A. Knapp left Washington at once prepared to begin sessions in Chicago. The conference began July 21. The men's statement of their case as presented to the board is in part as follows:

"Added responsibilities and the increased cost of living induced the engineers in the western territory to make certain requests of the managers of their railroads. These requests carried moderate increases in pay and some improvements in working rules, having for their object the standardization of wages and working conditions which were to be revisions and additions to the present schedule."

In their printed statement of their position the engineers laid emphasis on the increased traffic of the railroads declaring that more powerful locomotives, larger freight cars and longer trains had vastly increased the earning power of the roads and had added correspondingly to the responsibilities of the engineers with no corresponding increase in their pay.

The managers' committee replied that railroad conditions at the present time do not justify any increases in wages. The demands of the men, according to the managers, center upon the substitution of an eight-hour day for a ten-hour day in the computation of overtime.

"The employees know," the managers' statement asserts, "that it would be necessary to shorten practically all railway divisions, to relocate yards and shops, in fact to reconstruct the railways at prohibitive cost. The employees know the only effect of changing the basis of a day's wage from ten to eight hours would be enormously to increase the overtime paid."

In view of the present conditions there could be no justification for the railroads in taking any step that would add greatly to their expenses. The managers of railways have no moral right to accede to requests of employees that would unduly increase the expense of railway operation."

IRISH AFFECTION STRAINED

Two Irishmen were navigating the rough seas of Randolph street but other night, finding it anything but smooth sailing. One of them, who seemed to have a trifle less aboard than the other, was supporting his friend, evidently against his will. The latter was sobbing like a child.

"Why, Pat," he cried, trying to wrench himself loose from that gentleman's grasp: "Pat, me boy, what have I ever done to ye, that you won't let me fight ye?"
